Divinity and the Cosmos. Professor William James, of Harvard University, to Prof. Edwin R.A. Seligman, of Columbia College. There is a spiritedness about his whole attempt, a classic directness and simplicity in the style of most of it, and a bold grandeur in his whole outlook, that give it a very high aesthetic quality, reminding me forcibly of Spinoza himself, opposed as are many of Silberstein's views to those of his great fore runner. In his second letter to Prof. Seligman: There is really a grand style about his writing; quite a native kinship to Spinoza. In a letter to me Prof. James states: Your style is...
